

I splitted the inner hub flange, to make the restraint "softer" to be able to get some sort of convergence.

Results do converge quite nicely, no jagged sections.

Altough this setup is not the real deal, it does give me some usable value (for guidance use only).

This to me seems the best that is possible for this specific situation.